An Important Change at the District Government Buildings. Whipped in Sixteen Rounds, noon the Commissioners promulgated the Carroll fight to a finish for a purse of $1,500 "Ordered, that Roswell A. Fish is hereby emoved from the office of Assessor for the district, of Columbia, to take effect from Carroll scaled at 1312; Biakelock at 1321, Blakelock was the favorite at $50 to $40, but was hadly whipped in sixteen rounds. this date.

thich had already passed the New Jersey enate, was passed by the lower house yes erday, and now only needs the Governor's ignature to become a law. The passage "4. That Daniel Curry is hereby appointed a clerk at $1,200 per amum."

The Commissioners were non-committal about the removal of Mr. Fish. It was learned that they did not approve of some of Mr. Fish's actions in discussing District matters in public that were clearly questions for themselves.

They declined to go into particulars, but it is well known that these questions were in relation to the assessment of property. He insisted that the Commissioners had the right to reduce the taxes, as the language in the assessment act passed by Congress in 1878 stated that the rate "shall not exceed $1.50 on the $100." He argued from this that they had the power to place the rate at any figure lower than $1.50, but could not go beyond that sum. His persistence was regarded as unbecoming in respect toward his superiors, and as arrogating to himself a sense of authority that did not become his official relationship with the Commissioners.

The breach was widened on Monday last by Mr. Fish giving out for publication a tetter he received from an official in one of the Departments, which sustained his attitude toward the Commissioners. This was a kind of "a last straw" to the Commissioners. The letter referred to was read and commented on in the board meeting, and it was decided to summarily remove the Assessor. and it was decided to summarily remove the Assessor.

Commissioner Wheatley, when questioned regarding the matter, did not care to dis-cuss the causes governing the action of the board, but he admitted that Mr. Fish's at-titude toward the Commissioners was the principal ground. Mr. Webb was also seen; he intimated that the reason was as stated. He did not wish, however, to say anything about it. Cheers for Cleveland.

Ex-President Cleveland and party are be-Ing received with great enthusiasm at the way stations along the line. They will go directly from Jacksonville to St. Augustine stated. He did not wish, however, to say anything about it.

The new assessor, Mr. Roger Williams, is a lawyer, and his intimate knowledge of District law has been found invaluable to the Commissioners on many occasions. Mr. Williams is 35 years of age, of medium height, and was born in New York, and has been in the employ of the District Government for a number of years, and has rendered valuable service in the executive office, special assessment division and on general assessment division and on general assessment, and has always been regarded as an exceptionally accurate and efficient clerk.

Mr. Fish was Assistant Assessor of the A cablegram to the Police Gazette office postponed until April I. Both men are in active training. There is considerable difficulty in selecting a place for the battle and it is possible that it may be decided to bring the affair off privately.

Single Entertainment for a Doze Guests That Cost Over $200,000. The lavish expenditure of the Romans on be ecens, the great meal of the day, was often fabulous. Vitellius is actually re-ported to have squandered 400 sestertia, about £3,228 on his daily supper, though surely this must be a monstrous exaggera-tion! The celebrated feast to which he invited his brother, Lucius, cost 3,000 sester-tis, or £40,350. Suetonius relates that it sisted of 2,000 different dishes of fish and 7,000 of fowls, and this did not exhaust and 1,000 of lowe, and this did not exhaust the bill-of fare. His daily food was lux-urious and varied beyond precedent. The deserts of Lybia, the shores of Spain and the waters of the Carpathian seas were diligently searched to furnish his table with dainties, while the savage wilds of Britain and to bear their part in replenishing his who may have violated the law.

dainties, while the savage wilds of Britain had to bear their part in replenishing his larder. Had he reigned long Josephus says that he would have exhausted the wealth of the Roman Empire itself.

Ælius Verus, another of these worthies, was equally profuse in the extravagance of his suppers. It is said that a single entertainment, to which only a dozen guests were invited, cost 6,000,000 sesterces—6,000 sestertia, that is—or nearly £48,500. History relates that his whole life was passed eating and drinking in the voluptuous retreats of Daphne or at the luxurious banquets of Antioch. So profuse, indeed, was the extravagance of these times that to entertain an Emperor was to face almost certain ruin; one dish alone at the table of Hellogabalus is said to have cost about £4,000 of our money.

No wonder these imperial feasts were lengthened out for hours, and that every article, often revolting in the extreme, was used to prolong the pleasure of eating, or that Philoxenus should have wished that he had the throst of a crane with a delicate palate all the way down. One does not like to associate the name of Julius Cesar ne had the throat of a crane with a delicate palate all the way down. One does not like to associate the name of Julius Cæsar with habits of low gluttony that would disgrace a prize fighter, and yet, if our memory does not play us false, even he did not disdain to take emetics to return to his banquets with a keen appetite.—[National Review

Monday evening, while Cora, the 14-yea old daughter of Frank Palmer of Stock bridge, Mass., was returning home from singing school with her younger brother is singing school with her younger brother in a carriage, an unknown man sprang into the wagon, dragged Cora to the ground, and feloniously assaulted her. The brother defended his sister as well as he could, breaking a lantern over the viliain's head; then he drove rapidly home and gave the alarm. Officers and citizens are searching eagerly for the assailant. Mr. Palmer is one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of the place, and the affair has caused intense excitement. A few minutes before the assault on Cora, Mrs. William Hamilton was attacked in nearly the same locality by presumably the same scoundrel, but her screams frightened him away.

Skeletons in Chains.

Skeletons in Chains.

Private James K. Bolton, an instate of the Confederate Soldiers' Home, near Richmond, tells a startling story of the finding in the hold of the old Confederate ram Merrimac the skeletons of two men. Botton was a member of Johnson Battery during the war, and was wounded at Brandy Station. He is now almost in a dying condition. He declares that the discovery of these skeletons has preyed upon his mind for years. According to Bolton's story he was engaged as a wrecker in 1873. The person with whom he was engaged at that time was employed in getting the old copper off the Merrimac. While engaged in this work Bolton says that on one occasion he dived into the forecastle of the Confederate gunboat. There he found the skeletons of two men manacled to the floor. He supposes that they were members of the crew who were incarcerated for the violation of some rule of the navy, and when the craft was sunk were forgotten by their comrades and went down to their watery graves. mond, tells a startling story of the finding

GENERAL SPORTING NOTES.

A Washington correspondent of the Spirit of the Times writes as follows to that paper: The writer is astonished that more owners do not winter their horses at Ivy City. In other words, why every stall there does not harbor a race-horse during the winter months, as we have the best accom-winter months, as we have the best accommodations in America for stabling and exercising in all kinds of weather. The buildings, Exposition and Machinery Halls, being originally intended for other purposes, were erected in the most substantial manner.

They have 120 stalls, 12x12, and a better or safer exercising ring cannot be found under cover anywhere. The roofs being dome-like and aimost entirely composed of glass, afford, at all times, a bright, chery aspect; the atmosphere is always free from stable gases; the sun, when it shines at all, encircles the horses in their stalls as if in an open field, and it is never as cold as in ordinary stables, being seldom below forty-five Fahrenheit. This is on account of the glassy covering and concentration of animal glassy covering and concentration of animal heat.

The horses now stabling here are in excellent shape and taking their morning gallop on the trsek, the outer edge of which is in splendid order (the winter covering of manure not yet removed from the inside). Of course, cantering is the order of the day as yet, but in a short time the 2:00 gait will be struck. A letter from Augusta. Ga, says Mr. Green Morris and Mr. Burch are sending their horses along at 2:00. Well, those who think that the south has advantages for early preparation should not forget the drubbing southern trained horses received here at our opening last spring, and it might be well also to bear in mind that the same fate awaits them at our opening here on the 2sth prox.

One exception, however, may be footed here, and that is the "three year-old event," for which Mr. Sam Brown holds a fine, closed mortgage. One owner told the writer yesterday that he would give Mr. Brown 40 per cent. of the three-year-old stakes for his chances. It certainly looks as if 75 was nearer the value.

In regard to the two-year-old events, there are only a few youngsters wintering here, but among them are two nice lookers, and, if current gossip is at all trustworthy, and, if current gossip is at all trustworthy, they are good performers. One is a bay filly, by Little Phil, dam Elia Warfield. The other is not entered here, and it is a source of regret, too, as he is the grandest youngster that has been domiciled here in years. He is by Onondaga, dam Ballot. In looks, bone and symmetry he is certainly a grand looking horse.

Little Elia, the Elia Warfield filly, is very racy-looking, nice, keen, intelligent face

Little Ella, the Ella Warfield filly, is very racy-looking, nice, keen, intelligent face and eyes, graceful neck and throttle, shoulers and chest perfect, the former resting well back, the latter round and well fallen, unusually long (for her size) robust arms, very short cannons, long, expansive barrel, and loins as large as a quarter horse. Of course it is a foregone conclusion here that Mr. W. Walden has a mortgage on all the youthful stakes here and in Baltimore, but I fancy that the speel will be broken this year. Another correspondent, signing himseli

All of the improvements are excellent and of the most modern architectural design, The stables are large and commodious and sufficient to accommodate 500 horses. The water supply is abundant, of the purest kind, and copveyed right into every stable from a never-failing spring. Under the management of its president, Mr. J. C. Mc-Kibben, and the affable secretary, Hon. H. D. McIntyre, it is rapidly becoming one of the most popular racing points in America. We found quartered at the track two stables of horses, one owned by Mr. William B. Jennings and the other by Davis & Hall. The string owned by Mr. Pannings embraces Telie Doe, Swift, Frank Ward, Bigonette, Utility, Ted Foley, Langley and three two-year-olds by Onondago, Ten Broeck and Billet, respectively. These horses are trained by Mr. Ben. Fogg, who was reared among the thoroughbreds in Tennessee, and is entirely competent and trustworthy. The stables are large and commodious and outhward, which was rather sluggish for the winter, has increased very Florida, South Carolina and Georgia resorts will all feel the benefit of this. The majority of tourists from the East only stop be tween trains in Washington, but hundreds of them remain over for a day or two to enjoy the sights of the Capital. Old Point is getting the benefit of its full share of the travel, and the Hygeia Hotel is having a travel, and the Hygela Hotel is having a season fully up to its average prosperity. It is felt here that no place offers a more inviting prospect for additional hotel accommodations than Old Point Comfort. Mr. John F. Chamberlin, who has the franchise from the United States Government and the State of Virginia for a new hotel there, has about completed his arrangements for beginning the construction of the building. It will, when completed, be one of the most attractive and elegant hotels on the whole Atlantic Coast, and cannot fail to command the best patronage. Among those who will be associated with Mr. Chamberlin in this enterprise are several well-known public men and capitalists.—[Baltimore Sun.
